

The People with disability and their NDIS goals report is part of a series of publicly shared reports released by the NDIA as part of the Agency's commitment to sharing data. This is in addition to the comprehensive quarterly and other reports regularly released to assist stakeholders to better understand participant characteristics, participant outcomes and market trends.

The purpose of this report is to present information on the goals identified by NDIS participants. The report explores how goals vary according to the participant's age and disability.

Understanding participant goals provides insight into:

- expectations of people with disability
- how the community, markets and governments can respond to support the goals of people with disability
- assisting people with disability to think about their goals.

This data has been collected through the planning process. Participants have regular discussions with their planners, Local Area Coordinators and Early Childhood Early Intervention partners to establish their goals and needs, and to implement their plans.
